Bold Explorations in Community

Annual Report

FISCAL YEAR 2019

Sept 2018–Aug 2019

Thirty Years of Connection, Community, and Citizenship

OUR NEW MISSION STATEMENT

Essential Partners equips people to live and work better together in community by building trust and understanding across differences.

FOR THIRTY YEARS, ESSENTIAL PARTNERS HAS HELPED PEOPLE in the most challenging situations rediscover their mutual humanity and hope for the future.

With our time-tested approach, we teach people to foster new, deeper relationships across differences. We show them how to rebuild trust where it has been broken. We help them understand each other in truer, more complex ways so they can thrive in community. We set the stage for them to find a new path forward, together. And we do this without asking anyone to compromise their values, beliefs, or identities.

Relationships, trust, and understanding—it sounds simple. But polarization is possible wherever there's a difference of values, beliefs, or identities. It isn't just a partisan problem, it's a dynamic of human relationships. It takes courage, determination, and skill to repair the fraying bonds of a community.

Essential Partners was founded as the Public Conversations Project in December 1989 by Laura R. Chasin and a close-knit team of family therapists. They recognized the rising polarization in public discourse as a danger to a pluralist, nonviolent civil society. Our founders were innovators and visionaries. They developed our trademark model, Reflective Structured Dialogue, put it into practice around the globe, and taught others how to apply it in their own communities, campuses, and congregations.

Today, we follow in their footsteps, envisioning a world of thriving communities strengthened by difference, connected by trust. We train local leaders, provide support for their bridge-building efforts, and serve as a vibrant hub of innovation and exploration.

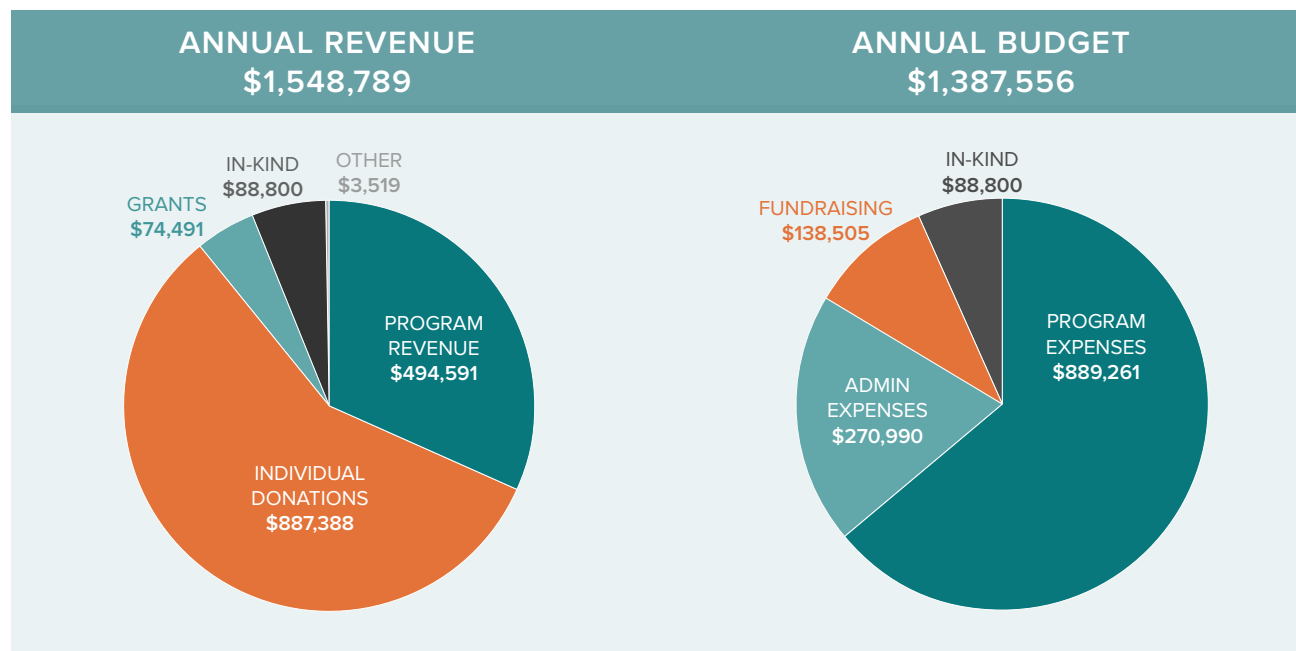

On April 2, 2020 we will gather in Cambridge, MA, to celebrate our 30th Anniversary. We hope you will join us to honor our founders, highlight the work of our affiliates, and help launch Essential Partners into its next three decades.

Impact Report

Our global network of alum are not just participants of a single dialogue or training, they are change-makers and community builders who employ our approach to create cultures of pluralism, inclusion, and trust across differences. In terms of lasting impact, we have no peers.

Our program evaluations find that...

of participants report greater trust in people who hold different beliefs, values, and/or identities.

+50%

change in participants reporting they feel more understood by the “other side.”

85%

of participants see that their community, campus, or workplace is more cohesive.

80%

of participants see connections across differences forming as long as a year after an EP engagement.

“As a black mom, I want to save my son. I feared for our safety. I now feel that my community is stronger, and there are honest police officers who care about us.”

Let's Talk Scale

3,193

Community builders were trained in EP's approach in Fiscal Year 2019, and EVERY SINGLE YEAR they will engage with neighbors, coworkers, students, and community members in projects that will bring about a large-scale transformation in their communities.

111,755

OVER THE PAST FIVE YEARS we reached nearly one million people in communities all across the globe by training fewer than 20,000 local leaders in our approach.

That's scale.

FACILITATION

Secondary School Innovation

Innovation for secondary schools is supported by a major grant, Communities in Mind. This initiative includes public schools in Massachusetts and Wyoming, religious schools in New York and New Jersey, as well as a collaboration with the Edward M. Kennedy Institute for the U.S. Senate in Boston. We are equipping the next generation to make healthier, more open, more democratic civic discourse possible.

Civic Health, Cohesion, and Resilience

We consult with partners across the globe to help them foster a healthier civic life. In Jordan and Turkey, our partners are nourishing bonds among refugees and residents. In Northern Ireland, they lead public engagements about green energy developments. In the United States, EP alum have made local governments more responsive, advanced new school building projects, and resolved longstanding religious tensions.

Culture Change in Higher Ed

We help colleges and universities build diverse, inclusive, open communities around intellectual values—both in the classroom and in campus life. Partner institutions range from private Middlebury College in Vermont to Miami Dade Community College in urban Florida; from Shenandoah University in Virginia to Southern Methodist University in Texas.

Faith Leaders of the Future

Whether working with an interfaith community coalition in Maryland, evangelical congregations in Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin, the Wexner Foundation for Jewish leadership in the United States and Israel, or with congregations, synagogues, and mosques across the globe, EP is training the next generation of faith leaders to foster vibrant, inclusive communities centered on shared values.
